MOTION FOR TEMPORARY CUSTODY, VISITATION, CHILD SUPPORT, SPOUSAL SUPPORT, AND/OR EXCLUSIVE POSSESSION

COMES NOW (☑ check one) ☐Plaintiff/☐Defendant (your name) _____ _____, in Proper Person, and moves this Honorable Court for an Order granting temporary custody, visitation, child support, spousal support, and/or exclusive possession. This motion is brought in good faith pursuant to NRS 125, NRS 125B, and NRS 125C, and is based upon the attached Points and Authorities, Affidavit of Movant, the papers and pleadings on file herein, and any evidence or argument heard at the time of hearing.

POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. LEGAL ARGUMENT

Regarding the temporary custody of the parties' minor child(ren), NRS 125.480 states in pertinent part:

> 1. In determining custody of a minor child in an action brought under this chapter, the sole consideration of the court is the best interest of the child. If it appears to the court that joint custody would be in the best interest of the child, the court may grant custody to the parties jointly.

2. Preference must not be given to either parent for the sole reason that the parent is the mother or the father of the child.

3. The court shall award custody in the following order of preference unless in a particular case the best interest of the child requires otherwise:

(a) To both parents jointly pursuant to NRS 125.490 or to either parent...When awarding custody to either parent, the court shall consider, among other factors, which parent is more likely to allow the child to have frequent associations and a continuing relationship with the noncustodial parent.

(b) To a person or persons in whose home the child has been living and where the child has had a wholesome and stable environment.

4. In determining the best interest of the child, the court shall consider, among other things:

(a) The wishes of the child if the child is of sufficient age and capacity to form an intelligent preference as to his custody;

(b) Any nomination by a parent of a guardian for the child; and

(c) Whether either parent or any other person seeking custody has engaged in an act of domestic violence against the child, a parent of the child or any other person residing with the child.

Additionally, NRS 125.510 states in pertinent part:

1. In determining the custody of a minor child in an action brought pursuant to this chapter, the court may, except as otherwise provided in this section and chapter 130 of NRS:

(a) During the pendency of the action, at the final hearing or at any time thereafter during the minority of any of the children of the marriage, make such an order for the custody, care, education, maintenance and support of the minor children as appears in their best interest; and

4. A party may proceed pursuant to this section without counsel.

Regarding child support for the parties' minor child(ren), NRS 125.040 states, in pertinent part:

1. In any suit for divorce the court may, in its discretion, upon application by either party and notice to the other party, require either party to pay moneys necessary to assist the other party in accomplishing one or more of the following:

(b) To provide temporary support for children of the parties;

2. The court may make any order affecting property of the parties, or either of them, which it may deem necessary or desirable to accomplish the purposes of this section. Such orders shall be made by the court only after taking into consideration the financial situation of each of the parties.

NRS 125C.010 states, in pertinent part:

1. Any order awarding a party a right of visitation of a minor child must:

(a) Define that right with sufficient particularity to ensure that the rights of the parties can be properly enforced and that the best interest of the child is achieved; and

(b) Specify that the State of Nevada or the state where the child resides within the United States of America is the habitual residence of the child.

The order must include all specific times and other terms of the right of visitation.

2. As used in this section, "sufficient particularity" means a statement of the rights in absolute terms and not by the use of the term "reasonable" or other similar term which is susceptible to different interpretations by the parties.

The statutory guidelines for child support are set forth in NRS 125B.070 and NRS 125B.080. Child support should by set at the following levels of the non-custodial parent's gross monthly income: 1) For one minor child – 18%; 2) For two minor children – 25%; 3) For three minor children – 29%; 4) For four minor children – 31%; and 5) For each additional minor child – an additional 2%. The non-custodial parent is obligated to pay a minimum of $100.00 per month per child. The maximum amount per month per child varies according to that parent's gross monthly income. However, the court can deviate from these sums based upon the factors listed in NRS 125B.080.

Regarding temporary spousal support, NRS 125.040 states, in pertinent part:

1. In any suit for divorce the court may, in its discretion, upon application by either party and notice to the other party, require either party to pay moneys necessary to assist the other party in accomplishing one or more of the following:

(a) To provide temporary maintenance for the other party

Additionally, regarding temporary exclusive possession of the marital residence, NRS 125.040 states, in pertinent part:

2. The court may make any order affecting property of the parties, or either of them, which it may deem necessary or desirable to accomplish the purposes of this section. Such orders shall be made by the court only after taking into consideration the financial situation of each of the parties.

Lastly, Eighth Judicial District Court Rule 5.21 states as follows:

(a) Except as provided in paragraph (c), if both parties to a domestic relations matter are living in the community residence at the time the order is requested, or if the other party is in sole possession of the community residence at such time, a motion by a party for immediate temporary exclusive possession of the community residence or for a preliminary injunction requesting the same relief will only be considered after notice to the other party. The motion must be supported by an affidavit upon personal knowledge setting forth in detail the facts in justification of such motion.

(b) If the other party is not living in the community residence at the time a party makes a request for exclusive possession of that residence, an appropriate ex parte restraining order will be considered by the court, subject to modification upon motion noticed as required in paragraph (a) of this rule. Such application must be supported by an affidavit upon personal knowledge setting forth in detail the facts in justification of such motion.

(c) Ex parte motions for restraining orders granting temporary exclusive possession of the community residence where both parties are residing therein will be considered only in cases of extreme emergency, supported by an affidavit setting forth in detail facts establishing the existence of an emergency to the satisfaction of the judge or referee. In applying for an ex parte restraining order, no party or attorney shall request another party to be removed from his or her usual residence if the property or interest therein is the separate property of the other party, nor may any person be required to leave any premises where he or she is residing unless given sufficient time (at least 12 hours) from the service of said order to remove his or her wearing apparel and personal effects therefrom.
